STEM Girls @ Sydney

20–21 January 2020

Entering Year 11 in 2020

Places are limited. Applications are open now - apply here before Thursday 14 November 2019

This exciting two-day workshop on campus is for female high school students who want to explore the disciplines and careers available in science, technology, engineering and maths (STEM) and how you can apply these skills in everyday life.

Participate in hands-on activities and hear from a panel of women who are pursuing careers across different STEM industries. You will also visit the research facilities of ANSTO and Google's office as part of the program. The program is free for its participants.

STEM at University of Sydney

STEM courses open up a world of opportunity. As new fields of STEM employment continue to emerge, it's important for today's graduates to be agile and able to adapt their skills to this fast-changing global economy. The range of STEM careers is broad and diverse, from biomedical engineering and software development to psychology and accounting. Our graduates are leading varied and fulfilling careers - we've taught Australia's first astronaut, an Antarctic explorer, a chief scientist and a Nobel laureate.

The future is looking bright for tech innovators and critical thinkers, and our degrees can help you get an edge over the competition.

Enter the world of Women in Engineering at the University of Sydney

Creating the perfect environment for STEM's future female leaders

More women than ever are choosing to study engineering and computing at the University of Sydney, and it's easy to see why. With scholarships for women, high school outreach programs by girls for girls, female student societies and high-calibre female lecturers and researchers, it's no wonder the proportion of undergraduate female students at the University of Sydney is double the national average.

Heading Into Year 12 and Thinking Of Dropping A Course?

As you start Year 12, it's not uncommon to think about dropping an HSC course. You might be struggling with the content of a particular subject, or you may simply want to study fewer units and have more time to focus on your remaining courses. These are legitimate reasons for dropping a course, but before you make any rash decisions, ask yourself the following three questions.
